Lo-Fi Wireframe

Design Choice

To make my shopping cart page appears more organized, I decided to split my page into four columns, with cart detail spans three columns and cart summary spans one column. For my cart detail section, I decided to include information about the item's picture, name, glaze selected, quantity selected, and price. I think that information is most important to customers and this layout is very clear and highlights necessary details. I also included a summary section because I think it's very helpful to show customers what's the total price for items they selected. I chose to display that information on the sidebar because users don't need to scroll down the page to find the calculated total.